

Brad Kopp

Vice President, Business Management, TASC

Brad Kopp oversees all aspects of business management for TASC. This includes finance and accounting operations, planning and budgeting, contracts and pricing, program business management, and procurement and subcontract administration.

Prior to joining TASC, Mr. Kopp served as a director of Business Management for Northrop Grumman's Civilian Agencies group and the Defense group. There, he led many group-level initiatives, including cash flow improvement activities and the IT sector's contract set-up process improvement team.

Previously, Mr. Kopp served as vice president and chief financial officer (CFO) for the services group of Federal Data Corporation. He was responsible for all finance and accounting functions for the transitioning business group. Mr. Kopp began his career at Computer Data Systems, Inc. and held a number of positions of increasing responsibility leading to group vice president and CFO.

Mr. Kopp has a bachelor's degree in business administration with concentrations in both accounting and economics from Shepherd College. He earned his master's degree in finance from the Johns Hopkins University.
